Anderson Home Gives Report of Activities

Daily at 7 a. m. twenty-four lively children rise, wast, dress, air beds, salute the flag, have personal inspection, are given cod liver oil before breakfast at 8 a. m. Children at the table, napkins on laps, heads bowed, voices repeat: "We thank thee Lord, for this our food, for health and life, and every good, let manna to our souls be given, the bread of life sent down from Heaven, Amen." Tomato juice, milkcorno with brown sugar, whole wheat bread and butter and milk is a typical breakfast.

After breakfast, teeth are cleaned, beds are made and rooms are straightened. About 9:30 these tasks completed, the children come inside for half an hour of indoor amusement as songs, games, etc. Active play or hiking takes place between 10 to 11. 11 to 11:30 is story hour or quiet play. At 11:30 they prepare for dinner. Dinner on this special day consists of meat loaf, mashed potatoes, spinach, whole wheat bread and butter, milk and creamy rice pudding with raisins. After dinner the children rest from 1 to 3. At 3 o'clock they play outdoors, choosing their own activities.

At 5 the whistle blows to prepare for supper. At 5:30 supper is served which consists of scalloped cabbage, beets, whole wheat bread and butter, milk and raspberries. Every meal of every day is carefully considered to give the best to little undernourished bodies.

From 6:30 to 7 is Story Hour. Seven o'clock is time to get ready for bed, at 8 prayers are said, all in bed, lights out.

Baths are given at least three times weekly. Weights are recorded each Thursday.

The children usually have a picnic sometime during the week.

Volunteer religious workers hold services each Sunday at 3:30 to which the public is invited.

The childrens teeth are being cleaned by Miss Velma Jones, Dental Hygienist.

The Camp is sponsored by Steuben County Tuberculosis Ass'n. under the supervision of Miss Margaret Standish, County Nurse. The camp committee consists of J. P. Lair, Charles Wineburg and Miss Hazel Stewart.

The officers of the organization are as follows:
Sherman Crane, Hornell, President, Charles Wineburg, Hornell, 1st Vice-President, J. P. Lair, Canisteo, 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. George Hutchinson, Bath, 3rd Vice-President, Mrs. C. W. Clapp, Cohocton, 4th Vice-President, Raymond Lake, Hornell, Treasurer, Mrs. Ora D. Layton, Canisteo, Exec. Sec'y.

The camp is maintained by the annual sale of Christmas seals and the volunteer gifts of friends. Children are selected by the County Nurses from all parts of the county. At present the capacity of the camp is 24 which is only a small percentage of the number of applicants. Care has been taken to select the children who would be most benefited by the food rest and routine of the camp.

County Hospital Question Again up For Discussion

The following letter received from E. Ray Hardenbrook, commissioner of Public Welfare, relative to the county hospital problem. The county home, like many other institutions supported by the taxpayers, is subject to the provisions of New York's objectionable mandatory laws. Eventually the state officials will order Steuben County to build a new hospital in connection with the almshouse, just as they ordered us to build a new jail.

Though these mandatory laws may be unjust, they are evidently inescapable at present. Consequently it might be better to build the new hospital now, getting federal aid for part of the cost, than to delay the matter longer. Mr. Hardenbrook's letter, giving a digest of the hospital negotiations, is printed below.—Ed's note.

To the Editor:

The representatives of the local papers have requested me to make a statement regarding the present action as to the erection of an infirmary or hospital building at the County Home.

The law places the responsibility for inspection and supervision of all County Homes in the State with the State Department of Social Welfare at Albany, N. Y. Under the law the State Department shall inspect each County Home at frequent intervals and compel certain standards to be maintained. These standards do not apply to buildings and equipment

Woodhull Beat Troupsburg

The woodhull base ball nine defeated the Troupsburg club last Sunday to the tune of 14 to 10, and next Sunday the Woodhull boys journey up to Troupsburg to renew the battle, and every base ball fan knows it will be some battle, since Woodhull and Troupsburg have been friendly enemies in base ball since Grover Cleveland was the President. It took four umpires last Sunday to see that there was peace, and as Woodhull won last Sunday, it is expected that there will be a real battle next Sunday, and it is possible that it will take five or six umpires to settle the arguments.

In last Sunday's battle the hitting of Ellison Hotaling was a feature. In the third inning his two-base hit brought in three runs and started the boys on a batting spree. He was four times at bat and got three hits and three runs. Herb Mosher, the old ball player himself in person, pitched eight innings for the winners, striking out several and scoring two of the runs himself. Earl Mosher, a younger brother, just to keep the family record good, batted balls all over the field. Prudin, Van Zile, Horton and Wady Olin also were good with the old stick.

The following Sunday, August 13, Woodhull plays Austinburg at Drake's field on the road to Jasper.

Several other games are being booked by Manager Herb Mosher. This fall and winter a new league will probably be formed, to be known as "The Little League" including Woodhull, Jasper, Troupsburg, Westfield and a few other towns. Two meetings have already been held, but it was decided that the season was too short this summer and the actual formation of the league was postponed until next spring.

Addison Boys Write Home About Reforestation Camps

The publishers of the Advertiser are indebted for two letters that have been loaned to this office by relatives of Irwin Curtis and Lester Van Zile. These letters give much of interest concerning the wild Idaho country in which these two young men are working with the C. C. C. Both letters enclosed a series of verses which the senders state are their own composition. It is unusual for this paper to print verse, but these contributions are quite unusual for amateurs, so we have broken over the rule in this case.

The letters and poems follow:

July 8, 1933

Dear Mother and Dad:

Received your letter of the 5th tonight and I'm going to send a poem that I made up.

Oh, how I miss those friends of mine,
While in the C. C. C's.
I wish that they were out here
Enjoying the mountain breeze.

Each day seems like a year to me
Yet weeks are passing by
I know that I can take it
At least I'll surely try.

Some say that I'll soon like it
And will not want to roam,
From the wide open spaces
To busy streets back home.

But now and then I have my doubts doubts
As many people do,
For when six months are over
I'll be with friends like you.

And as these hours pass me by
The thought of home is fine,
All letters sent I'll answer
The pleasure will be mine

We had quite a shower today but it didn't dampen our gang because

Popular Addison Couple Planned Quiet Marriage

Miss Helen J. Crane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard O. Crane, and Norman Phelps, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Phelps, left early Wednesday morning for Wanakena, N. Y., where they planned to be married Wednesday evening. The marriage was to take place at the summer home of the Rev. J. V. Axtell, pastor of the Addison Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Axtell officiated.

The bride and groom are two of the most popular young people in Addison. Mr. Phelps graduated from Addison High School and the Addison Teachers' Training Class. He taught one year at Lawrenceville, Pa., and then entered Pratt Institute in Brooklyn for an art course, graduating two years ago. Since that time he has been a member of the faculty of Painted Post High School, where he will teach next year.

The bride also graduated from Addison High School. She then took a course in Domestic Science at Cornell University, graduating with the class of 1926. The following fall she was engaged to conduct the Home Making department at Addison High, and has held this position since, having signed a contract to teach in Addison the coming year.

Following their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Phelps had planned an extensive motor trip, which was to include a visit to the Century of Progress at Chicago. Due to the impossibility of reaching the couple in the Adirondacks when this paper went to press, their subsequent plans are unknown. Mr. Phelps is building a rustic bungalow near the home of his father on Goodhue street, but this will not be ready for occupancy for some time.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Phelps were completely taken by surprise when the couple slipped away to be quietly married. Heartiest congratulations will await their return.

Once Addison Boy Prospect on Navy Football Eleven

The New York Times carried a story last week of interest to Addison people. In reviewing the Navy football prospects for next fall, the Times makes glowing mention of the athletic ability of Nelson Payne Watkins, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Payne, who was a "six letter" man at Lafayette High School. The story in part follows:

—Ed's note

Annapolis, Md., July 25 — With the new fourth class at the Naval Academy nearly completed and a large proportion of its members given their athletic survey, it is believed the general average of sports ability will be high.

The class is being watched particularly for football talent. Material for this sport is particularly abundant, and the plebe team next fall should be as strong as the unbeaten class team of last season . . .

The most versatile athlete in the class is Nelson Watkins, 188-pounder from Buffalo, N. Y. At Lafayette High of that city, and the Severn School, Watkins participated in football, basketball, baseball, soccer, lacrosse, and tennis, and he is adding a seventh sport by reporting for rowing.

EVERYTHING TO LOSE

The irresistible Woodhead bobbed up again last week with another ultimatum to the New York Milk Control Board. In substance his demand was: "Pay the farmers 45 per cent of the retail price of milk, or I'll call a strike."

As this is written, it appears Woodhead has backed down somewhat on his threat, and may be too cautious to call a strike of disgruntled farmers at present. At any event the Milk Control Board is standing firm on its determination to give the farmers a square deal, without entirely disrupting the necessary machinery of distribution which stands between the producer and the consumer. Disrupting that machinery would endanger a milk famine, something which no right-minded individual should live to contemplate.

Woodhead is primarily a publicity seeker, rather than the spotless friend of the farmer he tries to paint himself. He desires not so much that the dairymen get a big price for their milk, as that Woodhead make the front pages of the newspapers. Merely interviewing members of the Milk Board will not accomplish that mania for publicity, so Woodhead brazenly threatens to tie up the state milk supply with a strike—presto, he is front page news again.

Dairymen who stop to think, must be impressed by the fact the Milk Control Board has been a Godsend to them. Prevention of the ruinous price-cutting activities on retail milk and supervision of the marketing has enabled the Board to insist on much better prices for the producers. Dairymen received higher returns for milk produced the last half of May, and much higher prices for June milk. Under the new ruling which raised milk another cent in larger cities, the farmers will get a still higher price for the product sold after the twentieth of July.

Dairy farmers of New York State have every reason to be thankful the new prices are lifting them out of the depression. To start a milk strike now, in the face of the curtailed milk production affected by this summer's drought, would be suicidal, for it would merely invite the New York City Department of Health to open its doors for milk from the west. Once those doors are open, the one big advantage of eastern dairymen will be irrevocably lost.

Probably Woodhead can find a few hair-brained farmers to go with him into a strike—like the dog who dropped a real bone to grab for its reflection in the water. But the rank and file of our southern tier dairymen will prefer to hold to the advantages they have gained under the excellent work of the Milk Control Board. They have everything to lose in a strike, and slim chance of gain.

YOU CAN'T HELP GETTING BARGAINS

It is an ancient belief that the woman is the bargain-hunter of the family and the man must be dragged reluctantly, if at all, to where goods can be purchased cheaply.

If that is true, the man of the family must be having a good time now, for there is very little else but bargains, at prices unheard of a few years ago.

Those prices won't be with us much longer—economic law doesn't allow "distress" sales to go on forever. Everything from shirts to cement is going to cost more very soon, and higher price and wage levels will be on us before we know it.

It's about the last chance to buy needed household articles, and make property improvements and additions, at depression costs. The chances are that you, the reader of this, have been lax about keeping up your house and grounds, in order to save. But you had better start your building and repair work now if you don't want to dig deep into your pockets in the near future.

Providing jobs and purchasing power is better and cheaper than charity.

DANGER TO BE AVOIDED

Writing in his magazine, The New Outlook, on certain phases of the new Industrial Control Bill, Alfred E. Smith states that he has always advocated governmental supervision of business when public interest demanded it, but that he would be unfavorable to a permanent policy which would tend to make us all civil servants of the government.

The Industrial Control Bill was passed as an emergency measure, and has much to recommend it. It is an aggressive attempt to give legitimate business a chance to get on its feet, especially big business. But, even in a crisis, we should not forget that the principle it represents, if extended and continued after the present period of stress has passed, has dangerous possibilities to personal freedom of action. Under it, individualism can be squeezed out of business. The executive can be made simply the reflection of a Washington Bureau's voice. The field of opportunity for advancement of workers could be narrowed, and awards for initiative and enterprise greatly reduced.

If a nation comes to depend on government to direct all actions, its future is in danger. The eras of progress have always been periods in which individualism and freedom of thought and action were encouraged. It is true that as civilization grows more complicated, a broader social control is necessary—but the line must be drawn between a policy which supervises business in the role of umpire, and one which makes government the main player in the game. Perhaps the administrators of the new bill have these pit-falls in mind.

A GOOD INDICATION

One good report indicating that the depression may have turned the corner, comes from an old Addison boy, Allie Harden, who is in Chicago's famous Furniture Mart. Mr. Harden recently wrote his mother that the past few weeks had seen the most hectic sales events he had ever witnessed during his connection with this great furniture market in the middle west. Furniture buyers have been coming from all over the country buying heavily to replenish their stocks.

As most people know, the furniture business has been even more in the doldrums than many lines during the past three or four years. Many people were able to get along with what furniture they possessed, and consequently delayed the purchase of things they planned someday to use to better furnish their houses. Meanwhile ready cash all went for necessities of life. Furniture buying has been confined to needed replacements and the occasional outfitting of newly-weds.

Of late, however, furniture store owners began to discover their stocks were running low and the demand was picking up. Faced with the fact prices of home furnishings were already starting to rise, furniture men started a big stampede for the metropolis of the middle west to replenish their stocks. A large number of them decided to combine business with pleasure, so accompanied by their wives, the furniture men have been giving the Furniture Mart its busiest season ever, and at the same time taken in the Century of Progress.

What has happened in the furniture business is likely to occur in every manufactured line. Things used by the people have a habit of eventually wearing out. People for four years have been buying only what they absolutely needed to keep body and soul together. Consequently the law of wear and tear has been gradually building up a potential market in the United States which is probably larger today than it ever has been in the past. What has kept us in this vicious circle of depression, has been the lack of some event to create a "break" and start some great purchasing class into the market.

It appears now that the break may have come. Farmers were the first great group to feel the pinch of hard times, and today prospects for the farmer are unusually bright. Grain prices have risen by leaps and bounds and dozens of other commodities have followed. The higher grain prices are justified not by speculation, but by the crop failures in many parts of the country. Fortunately many farmers who will have no 1933 crop to sell, did hold over 25 per cent of their 1932 crop, so they too, will be somewhat benefitted by the rise in cereals. Given the funds to start the farmers buying, they in turn will start consuming far more manufactured products. Actual demand for labor produced articles, will do more to restore the country's men back to jobs, than all the panaceas man or wizard could conceive.

HAZARDS WORTH HEEDING

It would be a good thing if all automobile drivers were required to learn a little lesson concerning the potential destructive powers of a moving car, and the great distances required to stop.

A car moving at the slow speed of twenty miles an hour requires twenty feet to stop under the best of circumstances after 4-wheel brakes are applied— and with the average driver, it will have moved 14½ feet before he is able to apply the brakes. At 30 miles an hour, it will go 22 feet before he applies the brakes, and another 45 feet will be required to bring it to a stop. If he is moving 40 miles an hour, the brakes will not take hold until the car has gone 29 feet, and 80 feet more will be covered before the car is stopped. At extremely high speeds these distances are increased many times.

How would you like to be in an automobile that has just leaped from a precipice one hundred or more feet high? You would be just as safe (at least until you hit the rocks below) as you are rolling along the highways mile after mile at customary road speeds. An automobile traveling 60 miles an hour has the same capacity for inflicting damage, or the same smash as it would have from a straight drop through the air 120 feet.

The automobile is one of the most useful, and one of the most potentially dangerous of human inventions. Its safe operation requires constant caution, knowledge and regard for the rights of others. Because a percentage of drivers have lacked those qualities the highways of America see the unnecessary deaths of more than 30,000 people annually.

State Legislature Called To Help N. Y. City Out of Hole

Albany, Aug. 1—Albany is breaking records these days. For the first time in history extraordinary sessions of the Legislature have been called three years in succession. All three have been due to the mismanagement of the affairs of New York City by the powers there, that is, Tammany Hall. The session in the fall of 1931 was to give the Seabury Committee power to grant immunity so that stubborn officials with tin boxes and other receptacles could be forced to testify. That of last December was to give the city power to reduce the salaries of certain employees, without which reduction the banks would lend it no more money; it was then on the verge of bankruptcy. Those wage reductions were not accompanied by other economies and New York is again "broke" and unable to borrow further from the banks; which latter inability is not surprising in view of the fact that in 1932 the city went in the red $163,000,000, spending that much more than the income. The present special session is to help it out of this hole.

A Three-Cornered Situation

This latest session is of unusual interest because of the triangular situation, with every one of the angles loaded with politics. The three angles are Democratic New York City, which is seeking aid; the Republican party, which controls the Assembly and must agree to such aid, and Governor Lehman, Democrat, who must also not only approve the legislation, but must suggest it before the Legislature can consider it. A few simple words of explanation may help readers to follow the situation more intelligently.

The Tammany Angle

The New York City government asked for the special session. It said it had no money for unemployment relief—the city had been of late contributing about $3,000,000 per month, the State and Nation about $4,000,000. Mayor O'Brien requested that the Legislature double the present sales tax of one per cent all over the State and increase the tax on stock transfers by a cent a share, returning to the municipalities the extra amount thus collected. This would net the city about $41,000,000 a year and leave a margin after paying its share of relief money—which would come in handy in a hard campaign such as faces Tammany this fall.

The Second Angle, G. O. P.

That is the Tammany angle. The second angle was supplied by the Republican party, as expressed by Chairman Macy, which was unalterably opposed to a tax upon the whole State to make up for the waste and extravagance in New York City. Against this position Tammany undertook to do a little undercutting in its usual fashion. It sought to get up-State communities to join in its demand for the new State taxes in the hope of thus securing the vote of their Republican Assemblymen, and claimed to have 30 such cities and villages allied with it.

Tammany Hopes Blasted

But Tammany hopes were blasted by the third angle in the situation, Governor Lehman. In his initial message to the extraordinary session he stated in the most positive terms that he would oppose a State-wide tax for the special benefit of New York or any other city. He would, however, agree to give New York or any other city which established its need the right to impose additional taxes within its own borders, with the provision that the returns from such taxes should be kept separate and used for relief purposes only. Inasmuch as this meets the Republican view, that is likely to be the pattern of the relief legislation at the present session. Even if Tammany could get enough Republican votes to enact its demand for State-wide taxes, it certainly could not muster enough to pass it over the Governor's veto.

Tammany Sore at Governor

There is no question of the soreness of Tammany legislators toward the Governor. In hotel corridors and secret conferences they are very free to express it. But it will do them no good. They felt the Governor would not dare rebuff them in view of the fact that he will be a candidate for re-election next year and cannot win without New York's help. The governor has evidently considered that, and has decided that by acceeding to the demand for a state-wide tax for the benefit of Tammany he would incur more displeasure up-State and even in the Greater City, than he would in New York by putting directly upon Tammany's shoulders the responsibility for its own acts of incapacity, waste, extravagance and graft. And besides, Mr. Lehman is probably wise enough to know that by next year, when he is again a candidate for Governor, Tammany may not be in the saddle in New York City.

To Consider Other Problems

While in his opening message to the Legislature Governor Lehman dealt only with the relief problems of New York and other cities, he stated that he would later suggest other matters for consideration. Already he has offered some of these. Before adjournment, which is not expected for a month or so, it is expected he will have asked the lawmakers to take up, among other things, legislation to halt foreclosure of mortgages on homes where the owners are unable to meet interest or principal; either amendment of the beer law or new legislation to provide for control of liquor, on the theory that repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment may be effected before the regular session in January; adjustment of the State laws where necessary to fit in with the federal industrial recovery program; legislation making payment of ransom to kidnapers a crime. There will be requests for legislation along many other lines, but how many of them will be granted by the Governor is uncertain.

Checking Cars Improperly Equipped With Lights

Albany, N. Y., July 20 — City streets and rural highways are often crowded at night during the summer, and it is observed that about one in ten of the cars on the roads at night are moving with defective lights. It is a misdemeanor to drive with one front light or with no lights.

Serious accidents are frequently caused when automobiles are driven without adequate lights. Swiftly moving cars approaching street intersections may strike persons crossing the street unless the cars have proper illumination. The Vehicle and Traffic Law describes in detail the proper method of illumination, requiring at least "two lighted lamps on the front, one on each side having light source of equal power, which shall be visible from a point 500 feet ahead of the vehicle, and which shall project either white or yellow light, and one lighted lamp on the rear which shall display a red light visible from the rear for a distance of 500 feet."

The attention of the State and municipal police has been directed by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles to the driving of cars with faulty or defective equipment.

N. Y. Central Withdraws Request for Gas Franchise

Albany, July 19—Proceedings on petitions of the New York Central Electric Corporation for authority to construct gas plants and exercise franchises in three towns and one village in Steuben county and one town in Livingston county have been discontinued by the Public Service Commission.

The Commission discontinued the proceedings and closed the cases because the New York Central Electric Corporation formerly withdrew the application in each proceeding.

The petitions asked permission to construct gas plants and sought approval of franchises in the towns of Dansville, Rathbone and Thurston in Steuben county, and the town of Springwater in Livingston county and the village of Savona in Steuben county.

Several hearings were held on the company's petitions and adjournments have been extended from time to time at the request of the company. The company recently forwarded to the commission a duly verified instrument in writing formally withdrawing its application in each proceeding, without prejudice to its right to a renewal of the applications.

Many Motorists Unable To Get Half-Year Plates In Time for July 4th

Albany, July 20—Charles A. Harnett, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, said today that with a view of preventing a repetition of the confusion and delay that marked the sale of half-year registration plates on July 1 he would ask the Legislature for a law permitting the sale and use of half-year plates five days before the beginning of the six-months period.

Hundreds who had arranged a four-day trip over the Fourth were delayed by inability to secure registration before Bureau offices opened on July 1. Practically a day was lost, many standing in line several hours to await their turn at the Bureau windows. Unless the law is changed to permit the sale and use of half-year plates before July 1 the same condition will confront motorists next year.

Reports from various issuing offices of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles show that the rush for half-year registration, at half the annual fee, on July 1, equaled, if it did not exceed, the demand on December 31, the last day of the registration year. In one city there were two lines of applicants, extending more than half a block.

More than 50,000 sets of plates were issued on Saturday, July 1, which was only half a normal business day, the number of cars registering for the remainder of the year was about 25,000. The law as present restricts to July 1 and thereafter the sales of half-year plates.

Farmers' Picnic Part of Potato Growers Gathering

The annual Steuben County Farmer's picnic, usually held at Bath the second Saturday in August, will be combined this year with the second annual gathering of potato growers of the county. The outing will be held on August 12th, at Ingleside in the town of Prattsburg. An attendance of several thousand people is anticipated.

There will be several speakers who will discuss agricultural problems. The plowing contest will be held and there will be many other features in a complete program of competitive sports for both men and women. Band concerts will be given both morning and afternoon.

Ingleside may be reached by a good, although unimproved road, from Wallace northward through Lynn Hollow, by the Narcissus Prentice improved road from Prattsburg, or by an unimproved road from North Cohocton and Naples.

Yellow Dwarf and similar diseases which are so common in potatoes this year, will be one of the subjects to be discussed at the Potato Field Day and Picnic to be held at Ingleside, August 12. Another address which is sure to receive the complete attention of the audience is the discussion of the potato market outlook.

An event which is attracting wide interest is the cradle and bundle-tying contest of which Fred Ostrander is chairman. It is safe to say that such a contest has not been conducted any place in New York State for the last half century. Another feature event is a plowing contest in which single teams and walking plows will be used. Still another is the 'stepping-in' or hand planting contest in which it is expected that Earl Evans of Fremont, the winner of the 1932 event, will compete.

The program begins at ten o'clock with the plowing contest, horseshoe pitching tournament and a base ball game and sport events for juniors and women. The 'stepping-in' contest, ball games, speeches, band concert and the cradling contests will be conducted during the afternoon . This Field Day and Picnic, to which all farmers are invited, is sponsored by the potato committee of the Steuben County Farm Bureau.

Prisoner Runs Away as Jury Reach No Verdict

Thomas Burton, aged 65, who was arrested last week by Chief Bovee, charged with violating Section 722, Paragraphs 1 and 2 of the penal law, disappeared from the courtroom as a jury was deliberating his case at a trial before Justice of the Peace D. J. Colbert on Tuesday and by so doing, forfeited his bail of $100 and laid himself liable to subsequent arrest as a fugitive from justice. The jury, sometime after Burton's mysterious disappearance, reported that it was unable to return a finding, due to disagreement. Nothing has been seen or heard of Button in ths vicinity since.

At the trial on Tuesday, the people were represented by District Attorney George Pratt and the defendant by Attorney King, both of Corning. When arraigned Burton requested a jury trial, which was granted by Justice Colbert. Specifically, Burton was charged by the complainants with having made improper advances to a small girl, and the testimony of Chief Bovee and other witnesses bore upon the question of his guilt upon the issue.

Much consternation was aroused in court when Burton's disappearance was discovered. Later it was reported that he had been seen in flight through a back yard toward Steuben street and that at least one broken clothes line had been left in his wake.

Although the varied opinions which forced a jury disagreement in the case have not been divulged, it appears to be generally accepted that Burton by his disappearance, admitted his guilt and vindicated the action of Chief Bovee in bringing about his arrest.

"Welcome Home and Refresh Yourselves" bids their ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR

● Home again. Hungry and thirsty after a hot drive through Sunday traffic.

No wonder these returning weekenders bless their electric refrigerator. From its icy depths come juicy tomatoes, crisp lettuce, cold lamb, milk and cheese,—all the makings for a Sunday night feast.

The tomatoes were left over from Friday's salad. The milk was delivered Saturday morning. The lamb is what remains of Thursday's roast. But all kept perfectly over the week-end.

Knowing that perishables will keep fresh and wholesome for days at a time is only part of the convenience of electric refrigeration. Let us tell you about the rest. A visit to our store or your dealer's places you under no obligation. Why not make it today?

County Hospital Question Again up For Discussion

alone, but also to the care of the inmates, the quality and quantity of food and in fact, these standards regulate each activity in the Department under the County Commissioner of Public Welfare..

For several years past each report of inspection of the County Home has recommended the replacing of the present hospital building. In 1931 the board members of the State Department of Social Welfare came to the County Home and made an inspection. Following their inspection they condemned the present building and directed that a new building be erected to replace the present structure. A committee of the Board of Supervisors met with the State Department, an architect was employed, plans were presented and approved by the State Department of Social Welfare. Later there was a public meeting held in the Court House in the village of Bath, at which time the State Board, thru its chairman, stated that they would not compel the building of a hospital or infirmary building at that time, due to the economic situation, provided however, the Board of Supervisors would appropriate sufficient funds to correct certain conditions in the other buildings at the County Home. The Board of Supervisors did appropriate the funds for repairs and they have been completed and now meet with the approval of the State Board.

The hospital or infirmary situation remains the same as it was at the time of the public hearing; that is; the building has been condemned as unfit for use as an infirmary or hospital and the State has advised the County of Steuben that as soon as the economic situation warrants, proceedings will be taken to compel the County to erect a suitable building for use in caring for their sick.

Recently I received a communication from the State Department of Social Welfare, stating in substance: that the Federal Government had passed legislation whereby a large sum of money was appropriated for use of the various State Departments in making allocations to certain counties and that 30 per cent of any sums expended under this act to encourage employment would be given by the Federal Government to the County as an outright gift; that the entire sum could be borrowed from the Federal Government at a rate of interest not to exceed 4 per cent; that in all probability it would be several years before labor and material could be procured at present prices; that eventually the County would be compelled to build, the same as was the case with the County Jail, and that when compelled to build there would not be 30 per cent given by the Federal Government. Moreover, labor and material would be much higher, making the cost considerably more than at present. The State Department has explained to the Board of Supervisors that an $85,000.00 building erected with Federal aid at present would cost the county approximately $59,500.00; that if the building is deferred and labor and material prices raise, it would cost the County $100,000.00 or more for exactly the same structure, so the gift of 30 per cent from the Federal Government is limited to immediate construction and preference is given to Counties prepared to act at once and thereby relieve the unemployment situation.

I was asked as County Commissioner of Public Welfare for Steuben to explain this offer to the Board of Supervisors, which I did, and at an adjourned meeting, Mr. William C. Rogers, assistant Commissioner of Social Welfare of the State Department was present and made a more complete statement.

A committee of the Board of Supervisors has been appointed to make further inquiry and to report to the Board.

Hoping this explains the situation, I remain,

Very truly yours,
E. Ray Hardenbrook
County Commissioner

Westfield Plays Here Sunday, August 6

Fighting Tanners Will Invade Tuscarora Field This Week.

After being on the road two weeks, the Addison team will return to Tuscarora Field Sunday and will entertain the aggressive Westfield team in what should be one of the best games of the year. Addison took Westfield's measure early in the year, but the Tanners have improved greatly in the last few weeks and are now fighting the best in the League on even terms. They number among their victories one against Corning at Corning and another over the League leading Blossburg team. Headed by the three Zerfluh boys, Eddie, Pete and John, with Pat Weidman, Moore, Monroe, White, Cushing, Ivan and Louis Schoonover, the team is one of the hardest to beat in the League. Cushing has been doing most of their pitching lately and will probably start Sunday with Yeager behind the plate.

Manager Morris is counting on his regular lineup for the game and will probably pitch Walt McDermott, with Grange in reserve. Last year Mac turned in a victory over Wesfield and will make the visitors hustle Sunday. Harlo Brennan and Dick Hovey played last week against Mansfield and may be in the lineup again Sunday. Brennan is a reliable hitter and should add considerably to the offensive strength of the team. Hovey made a fine record with the A. H. S. last spring and is a fast snappy young player. The game as usual will be called at 3 o'clock. The Westfield team always brings a big delegation of rooters along and Sunday is bound to see a big crowd at Tuscarora Field. The Addison team is still in the League picture and this is the first of three games out of the next four that the team plays at home. All out Sunday, the game will be worth seeing.

we were putting the water tank in the bath house.

I had quite a work-out tonight and took off about a pound of weight. It's darned easy to take on weight out here. I can't eat as hearty as I would like to.

Boy, Oh Boy! I sure enjoyed my dinner though. We had strawberry shortcake, and was it good? Oh, Boy.

Say if you decide to go over to Baker's, and I wish you would, please tell Mrs. Baker that I am happy and in the best of health and would be very grateful for a letter if she feels able to write.

I'm going to church in the morning and glad of the chance because I don't believe it hurts me a bit.

The foreman that I am working under is an Idaho man and a good boss. He told me yesterday that he wanted me to work with him on bridge work, because I am a good man with a blue-print and know how things should go, but I don't know as I will be able to if I cook. Well I guess that's all for tonight so I'll say good-bye.

Your loving son as ever,
Irwin

Smith's Ferry, Idaho

Dear Mother:

I received your ever welcome letter and was very glad to hear from you.

I didn't mean to hurt your feelings about not writing, but it gets so monotonous here at times, that I don't know what to do with myself. You see, we are located way back in the mountains, with nothing to do after working hours but sit around. The nearest town is twenty-two miles from camp. We have one little store about a quarter of a mile from here. That's what they call Smith's Ferry.

I spend most of my time wandering around the mountains. That's about all the comfort I can take here. It sure is a wonderful country and plenty wild. You spoke about wild animals being here in your last letter. There's nothing here that's dangerous. There's lots of deer, elk, brown and black bears, and a very few mountain lions. But I haven't heard of any one being attacked by any of these animals.

About a week ago, one night, a bear wandered down into camp, and pushed his nose underneath the tent flap of one of the cook's tents. The cook let out a yell, and the bear was more surprised than the cook was. He fell over the tent ropes and grunted and squealed and had an awful time before he could get under motion to get away.

You spoke about picture postcards. They don't have any here. I may get some up at Boise. I am going to try to go up there the Fourth. It costs $4.00 for a round trip. It's 65 miles from our camp, and the largest city of Idaho, with a population of 22,441. It's about the size of Elmira.

I am going panning for gold with my boss July 8th or 10th. He has a couple of good panning apparatuses, and knows a lot about it. He says he goes out every fall and makes from four to five hundred dollars in about two months. Of course where he goes they have to use pack horses. He owns a small claim about 300 miles from here. I went out last Sunday and found some quartz with a small quantity of silver in it.

When we were going to work yesterday we saw a car go over an embankment about 800 feet. It smashed the car all to pieces and killed one of the men instantly, and the other died before they could get a doctor. The one that died first was a hitch-hiker. He got in with this fellow at Smith's Ferry, and the accident occurred about a mile and a half from here.

The roads here are awful dangerous. You see they are cut out of the side of the mountains, with nothing but shale rock and sand for shoulders, and no guide-rails whatever. They wind around worse than any horse-shoe bend you ever saw. Some places you can look over the edge for 2,000 feet. These mountains are awful high around here. I can look any where here now and see snow-capped peaks and they stay that way the year around. We are just having spring here now. The days are nice and warm, but when the sun goes down we have to build a fire in each tent to keep warm. Our time here is four hours later than years. When you are eating breakfast, I am just getting ready for dinner. We don't have hardly any sun-set. It seems to go down all at once.

I am working on a new job now, and I don't like it very much. We have to go out and poison gophers. They are a little animal something like our squirrels back home. Only they live in a hole in the ground. They say that these gophers destroy the roots of the trees, and there's too many of them.

Ma, I appreciate your sending me money, but I don't need it out here, there's nothing much to spend it for. I get five dollars a month, I spend $1.00 for laundry, and that leaves me a dollar a week for spending money. I can get my tooth paste, shaving cream and razor blades here. They are plenty high. Gasoline is 27 cents a gallon and there are places about 150 miles from here it costs 85 cents a gallon. There aren't many railroads out here and it costs a lot for shipping.

Well mother, I guess I will have to close as I can't think of any more and, please answer soon.

From your always and forever loving son, Lester.

THE STREAM OF LIFE

By Lester Burr Van Zile

Far back from the eyes of the cities
In the wilds of the western hills,
Lies a range of rolling mountains,
And green soft valleys so still.

The clouds above, white and crimson
Sails an ocean of blue,
And the sun, with its life-giving power,
Brings Nature again into view.

The spring of this future is visioned,
By eyes that are young and new,
But they feel the strain of their fathers
That struggled these hardships thru.

The long curling roads thru the mountains,
Each carries a long weirdsome tale
Of the long perished tread of the red men,
Who used it then as a trail.

Now a camp of youths is stationed,
Where once the tepee's stood,
Of a race that's long forgotten,
Who roamed these western woods.

So time will go on forever,
Soon will our span expire,
From life's picture we'll fade together,
And enter some kingdom higher.

Perhaps in the coming future,
Where we're camped in the Western hills,
Will glisten some mammoth towers,
A city of many mills.

And the trails into roads we're makin',
Will be paved with glass or stone,
And queer shaped racing demons,
Upon our trails will roam

And so we turn life's pages,
As we're camped in these western hills,
We live and learn for the morrow,
Until life's stream is filled.

Old Smoke

The war clouds hung low over the lands of the Iroquois from Schenectady, "the gateway", even to the western boundary beyond the "beautiful valley" or Genesee.

Divided were the councils on the reason for these dark forebodings, for all was peace and harmony until the paleface entered the land of old New York.

First, a paleface with a red coat would come to council and say that the mighty King over in London wanted the friendship and aid of the mighty Iroquois because, he said, the "naughty children" of the king who lived near the "blue hills", or Massachusetts, would not obey the king.

Then would come people from Boston, who were those the King considered his "naughty children", and they would tell the councils of the red men that they were free men and not "naughty children" and the King had no right to oppress them by heavy tribute.

In this time of trouble, the Iroquois held many councils and long were the speeches by Red Jacket and others; and the Iroquois voted that each of the Six Nations could decide which of the claims of the palefaces was true and to govern themselves accordingly.

There arose in the councils of the mighty Senecas, the old chief Sayenqueraghta, who always used the ascending smoke of the council fire to show the unity of men, always drifting upward to the land beyond the sky. Old Smoke felt that the King's messengers spoke the truth and that the Bostonians were "naughty children" and should be punished. Darker and darker grew the war clouds and finally the Bostonians won their freedom from the King. And Old Smoke died and asked to be buried as near the English as possible so he sleeps in the most eastern village of the Senecas at Ka-na-dasa-ga.

SAY YOU SAW IT ADVERTISED IN THIS PAPER

Buy Insecticides That Are Labeled

Experiment Station Authorities Issue Warning on Provisions of Insecticide Law.

A warning on insecticides and fungicides offered for sale in New York of interest both to dealers and to farmers who must buy spray and dust materials is contained in a statement coming from officials of the State Experiment Station at Geneva in charge of the inspection of these materials under provisions of the agricultural law. The intent of the law is to protect the buyer against misrepresentation and low-grade materials by means of complete information set forth on the label, say the Station authorities, adding however that some dealers in the State are either ignorant of the law or have neglected to meet its requirements.

Quoting from the insecticide law, they point out that, "no person, firm, association or corporation shall sell, offer for sale, or expose for sale any insecticide or fungicide unless the same is labeled or branded with the name and address of the manufacturer thereof and a statement which shall set forth, so near as may be, the percentages and chemical composition of all essential substances or ingredients." The label is the manufacturer's guarantee of his commodity and is the buyer's protection against obtaining material of doubtful composition and quality, say the officials. Tests in the Station laboratory serve as a check on the statements on the label.

Fruit and vegetable growers have found it advisable to use only those poisons that have proved their worth in combating insect pests and plant diseases; and with the rapid increase in the number of new materials and combinations on the market, it behooves the buyer to examine carefully the label to make certain that it contains the kind and amount of active ingredient that will give the protection sought, it it said.

The Station will publish the results of its tests from time to time in order to keep the purchaser informed on the character of the materials put out by various manufacturers. In the meantime, the Station authorities urge every buyer to be his own inspector by reading the information on the label and by declining to buy unlabeled insecticides and fungicides.

Beekeepers Meet Between Seasons

Annual Picnic on August 4 Comes at Close of White Honey Run and Before Buckwheat Season.

The gag rule applies to New York state beekeepers at thir annual picnic at Roseland Park on Canandaigua Lake, August 4, according to Professor E. F. Phillips of the state college of agriculture. No New Yorkers are scheduled to speak and out-of-state speakers, he says, are limited to five-minute talks. The main values, he says, are expected to come from personal conversations.

Many New York state beekeepers ar expected to meet the following day with the Ontario beekeeper's association and the Lincoln and Welland associations at the Larkin farm No. 2 at Queenston, Ontario, the following day. Canadian beekeepers met with the New York association last year at Ransomville, and two years ago at the farm of then Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt at Hyde Park. Dr. E. J. Dyce, a Cornell graduate, represents the Ontario Agricultural College at the picnic.

The picnic, Dr. Phillips points out, is scheduled annually on the first Friday in August, which is at the close of the white honey season. At that time the beekeepers know the amount of the white honey crop and have a fair estimate of the buckwheat crop. Beekeepers who attend the picnic may have an opportunity to judge market conditions for the season.

Beekeepers are requested to bring their main beekeeping tool, smokers and smoker fuel, for the smoker-lighting contest.

How What and Why?

This paper has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State colleges of agriculture and home economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply to your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

Equinoctial Storms

B. B. S. asks: "Is it true that the wind direction on the day when the sun 'crosses the line' determines the character of the weather for the next six months?"

J. C. Fisher of the Ithaca station of the United States weather bureau says, "many persons have believed implicity in this type of prediction. One Ithaca believer based his predictions for New York state on the direction of the wind at Ithaca, which on that day was south; but on the same day the wind direction at Oswego was north, at Albany east, and at Buffalo west.

A general belief in equinoctial storms still exists: but weather bureau records show that severe storms are no more frequent than at any other date two or three weeks before or after the equinoxes, or when the sun 'crosses the line'."

Strawberry Fertilizer

B. B. asks: "Our strawberries are small this year and only lasted about ten days. We transplanted the plants from an old patch. The patch is picked one year and then plowed. What kind of fertilizer makes the strawberries larger?"

Professor G. W. Peck says' "strawberries grow best on fairly rich loose soil, or soil well supplied with organic matter. Stable manure is probably the best fertilizer for strawberries. If this is not available use four or five hundred pounds to the acre of a 5-10-5 commercial fertilizer. Strawberries were a short crop this year because of dry weather. You might try some plants of the Premier variety grown by a commercial grower. I am sending you a copy of the Cornell bulletin E-211, strawberry growing, which I hope, will prove useful to you."

Mite Attacks Maple

G. A. asks: "Can you tell me what causes the bunches on the enclosed maple leaves? The leaves turn white, then brown and fall off. What will prevent the trouble?"

"The maple leaves you enclosed in your letter were covered with swellings or galls of a tiny mite known as an Eriophyid mite". According to W. E. Blauvelt, "the mite winters in cracks in the bark and in bud scales. Whe nthe foliage comes out in the spring the mites feed on the under-surface of the leaves. The irritation from the feeding causes the leaf tissue to develop the abnormal swellings or galls within which the mites live and continue to feed.

"The pests may be controlled by spraying the trees, just before the buds open in the spring, with a solution of concentrated lime-sulphur at the rate of one gallon to fifteen gallons of water. This kills the overwintered mites before they have the chance to form the galls. I am enclosing the Cornell bulletin P-515, which describes four insects that attack shade trees. One of the four, the maple bladder-gall mite is similar to the one attacking your trees".

Potato Growers Arrange Program

Empire State Club Meets August 9 At.. Walter ..Miller.. Farm,.. Near Williamstown, Oswego County.

The Empire state potato club begins its field day with plowing and fitting potato ground, at 8:30 Wednesday morning, August 9, and ends with digging potatoes with a two-row padded digger operated by a power take-off, according to Professor E. V. Hardenburg of the state college of agriculture. The field day and picnic is scheduled at the farm of Walter Miller at Williamstown, Oswego county.

Machinery manufacturers will have their newest machines in operation from 8:30 until ten o'clock, when C. L. Messer, Jr., of Auburn explains the potato plots. These plots show many of the new varieties and some of the more serious diseases affecting potatoes. Professor Hardenburg leads a discussion following a planting demonstration, which is followed by a "stepping in" contest conducted by Ray E. Sylvester of Oswego county. L. A. Toan of Wyoming county leads the discussion following the spraying demonstration. The forenoon program closes with a grading demonstration conducted by H. S. Duncan, food products inspector at Rochester, in the 30,000 bushel storage.

The Pulaski Academy fifty-piece band plays during the noon hour. Mr. Miller, the host, tells how he operates his potato farm and how he manages to get 300 bushels to the acre yields without livestock and without following a rotation. He is followed by John A. McSparran, secretary of agriculture for Pennsylvania. With the exception of Mr. Miller, and Secretary McSparran, talks are limited to ten minutes, according to Professor Hardenburg.

M. F. Barrus, Ora Smith and B. A. Jennings of the college of agriculture discuss virus diseases in potatoes, potato storage and potato digging. State troopers and boy scouts will assist in directing traffic and parking, and the state roads in adjoining counties will be posted to direct visitors. Four churches plan to operate lunch stands on the grounds he says.

POULTRY CULLING SERVICE AVAILABLE TO ALL FARMERS

B. F. Edmunds of Prattsburgh recently wrote the farm bureau office as follows: "I want the hen culling service this year as in the past. I am sure that it pays in more ways than most people think."

Mr. Edmunds has used the farm bureau poultry culling service for many years and has apparently found it a profitable investment. That is the experience of many other farmers who use this service. It is available to all farmers of the county at a small cost. Applications should be made to the farm bureau at Bath at an early date.

In announcing the service the farm bureau calls attention to the fact that the price of feed is high as compared to the price of eggs and that a thorough culling of the poultry flock will pay better this year than usual. Those who carefully cull, will save on feed cost throughout next year, the farm bureau states.

Year-Old Pasture Foils Hot Blasts

Wild White Clover Enables Grasses To Withstand Drought— Lowers Soil Temperature.

Dairymen from nine southern-tier counties saw a permanent pasture capable of heavy grazing, which was planted twelve months ago, when they attended a dairy field day at the college of agriculture a few weeks ago. The pasture plot was seeded with the mixture recommended by the college of agriculture; the mixture contains twelve pounds of Kentucky blue grass, two pounds of orchard grass, six of timothy, five of mammoth red clover, and one pound each of Kent wild white clover and yellow trefoil.

A similar plot without the wild white clover and yellow trefoil showed decided browning from dry weather. The 160 plots of different grasses and combinations of grasses also showed the beneficial results when wild white clover was seeded. The pure strain seedlings had suffered from drought while the same grasses mixed with wild white clover are growing luxuriantly.

Professor D. B. Johnstone-Wallace explains that the wild white clover is low-growing, as are other pasture strains of grasses and clovers, and shades the ground. The soils in the plots which are mixed with wild white clover have averaged ten degrees lower temperature during the hot weather than the pasture grass plots. The group also saw the wild pasture strains of timothy, orchard grass, broom grass, and other grasses imported from England and Australia, and some wild strains found in New York state. The wild types are flat, spreading grasses which are able to withstand heavy grazing. The cultivated types are more up-standing and the whole plant is often destroyed in a single bite.

Select Food Sources Carefully In Planning Your Summer Camp

Food Essentials For Children and Adults Named by Commissioner Baldwin—Milk, Fruits, Vegetables Lead

By CHARLES H. BALDWIN
Commissioner, Department of Agriculture and Markets Albany, New York

IF you are planning a family camp this summer, make very sure that the most careful attention is paid to the food question, especially for the children. Otherwise the old story of coming back from vacation to rest may be a sad reality for the youngsters, who ought to return for reopening of the schools with renewed vitality and vigor.

In the large children's camps, the food habits of the young wards are carefully watched and properly guided. I refer, of course, to those camps whose supervision is known and approved, as should of course be the case in every camp before any parent consents to send his child there. But in the private family camp, sometimes a lack of trained dietary experts results in improper nourishment for the child during the summer away from the advantages of home.

Essentials Easy to Get

When essentials are abundant, here is a food list for each child:

Milk—One quart daily, including that used in cooking, on cereals or as a drink. Not more than one quart per child need be provided unless a physician orders it.

Cereals and bread—Daily. Dark cereals and dark bread should predominate. Hard bread is valuable to induce chewing.

Butter—Daily. Butter substitutes—margarines and nut butters—may be used in cooking or for the table if the children receive one quart of milk a day. Peanut butter is nourishing and when purchased in bulk is economical.

Vegetables—Potatoes and two other vegetables daily. Greens, such as beet tops, cabbage, chard, spinach and dandelion greens are generally available in summer and are valuable foods. They should be used at least 3 or 4 times a week. Dried beans, peas and lentils are seeds and do not replace leafy or root vegetables.

Fruit—Fresh fruit daily.

Eggs—One daily or 3 or 4 a week, including those used in cooking.

Meat or fish—Neither necessary nor desirable more than once a day

Food Substitutes

Because of the very high nutritive value of cod liver oil, its use as a food is often recommended for delicate children. Consult the physician as to this.

In more remote camps, where supplies may be restricted, certain substitutions may be necessary. Evaporated or powdered milk may be used in cooking, but not less than the equivalent of one pint of fresh milk per child should be served daily.

When fresh vegetables or fresh fruits are restricted, at least dried fruit should be served daily and canned vegetables frequently, with especial emphasis on canned tomatoes or tomato juice and finely chopped raw cabbage or finely chopped raw carrots once or twice a week. Dried peas and beans, which contribute valuable mineral elements, should be used frequently

How Are Your Auto Lights?

Chief Bovee Receives Letter From State Department Calling For Enforcement of Traffic Law Provision

The following letter from Carroll E. Mealey, Deputy Commissioner of Motor Vehicles at Albany calling attention to traffic law requirement with respect to proper head and tail lights on all automobiles has been received by Chief Elmer Bovee of the Addison Police Department. Chief Bovee refers it to the attention of the traveling public and requests the co-operation of all local and visiting autoists in seeing that the provision of the traffic law are complied with.

The letter reads as follows:

To All Police Officials:

Commissioner Harnett directs me to call your attention to the fact that serious accidents are frequently caused when automobiles are being operated without adequate lights. The Vehicle and Traffic law describes in detail the proper method of illumination, requiring at least "two lighted lamps on the front, one on each side having light source of equal power, which shall be visible from a point 500 feet ahead of the vehicle, and which shall project either white or yellow light, and one lighted lamp on the rear which shall display a red light visible from the rear for a distance of 500 feet."

Your attention is called to this particular section of the Law and your co-operation is requested in he enforcement of such provision.

Yours very truly,
Commissioner of Motor Vehicles
Carroll E. Mealey
Deputy Commissioner

Cheif Bovee states that there is a present tendency upon the part of motorists to ignore many other provisions of the Traffic Law, especially those relating to "Stop" signs, speeding and driving by minors. He requests that the public render its complete co-operation toward the observance of all motor and traffic regulations.
